

Derrick's music combines the influences of rock, pop, country, bluegrass and folk into a unique form of acoustic alternative country. During the mid-1990's he was a contestant in the TNN "Country Showdown" national talent search and "Be A Star" competitions, the precursor to the current "Nashville Star" TV series. Before moving to Bellingham from Kansas City, Missouri in 2006, he performed in outdoor venues including "The Spirit Festival" and "Acoustic Music Festival" sharing the stage with major recording artists including Eddie Money and B.B. King.
